EUROPE AND THE POLITICS OF CULTURE

SIMON MUNDY

- An important and very relevant discussion of culture in the context of European politics.
- An important backlist title from Hay Press, now an imprint of Renard Press.

The processes that drive modern politics in Europe have deep and complex origins. Patterns of migration, invasion and dominance, formed over several thousand years, still determine Europe's cultural landscape. Today's Europeans have not yet learned how to take into account the national, regional and ethnic tangle and have developed a sense of cultural insecurity which cannot be satisfied by economic prosperity alone. In this provocative and lively book, Simon Mundy discusses the forces that have shaped this sense and argues that cultural problems need cultural solutions. It is debate of this calibre which can take us into the twenty-first century with the ideal of a peaceful and dynamic Europe transformed from vision into reality. This book should be prescribed reading for all Europeans.

Simon Mundy has been President of the European Forum for the Arts and Heritage and Director of Britain's National Campaign for the Arts, has directed festivals in Scotland and the Netherlands, published five collections of poetry and several books on musicians. He is a consultant to many of Europe's institutions and frequently moderates at international meetings.

'Mundy can be cheeky, he can be rueful, but he is always passionate.' (on By Fax to Alice Springs)

DALJIT NAGRA

ABOUT THE AUTHOR:

Simon Mundy studied drama at university, but soon veered towards writing poetry and reviews, and at 23 he found himself a music critic and arts journalist. A champion of the arts, he has served as Director of the National Campaign for the Arts and Vice-President of PEN International's Writers for Peace Committee, and he co-founded the European Forum for the Arts and Heritage; he remains an adviser to the European Festivals Association. His writing includes biographies, novels, non-fiction, playscripts and poetry.
