RENARD PRESS ACQUIRES FLEDGING, THE DEBUT NOVEL BY ROSE DIELL.

- The debut novel by a talented writer.
- Longlisted for the Reflex Press Novella Award 2022.
- A novel for our times: a brilliantly original take on the topical debate on the child-free movement and women's right to choose.
- Will appeal to fans of Sheila Heti's Motherhood and Emma Gannon's Olive.
- An empathetic and identifiable work for all those facing the baby question.

Renard Press is thrilled to announce that it has acquired UK & Commonwealth (excl. Canada, Australia and NZ) rights to Fledging, the debut novel by Rose Diell. A beautifully crafted, delightfully quirky novel, this tale about a woman who lays an egg is a rallying call in the fight for women's rights over their own bodies and speaks to all those haunted by the baby question.

Synopsis:

It starts as bloating, a hard curvature in my gut that won't go away. I wonder if it's my period, but it isn't the right time. The cramps come slowly at first, like a rising tide, and then grow shorter and sharper, a racing heartbeat.

When Lia lays an egg she doesn't know what to do. At her age, it's impossible to escape the baby question, and all her friends seem to be having children. She feels her heart's not in it – but all the same, there's the egg, impossible to ignore, lying in a nest of towels in the living room.

Her partner on tour on the other side of the world and her mother diagnosed with a terminal illness, Lia finds herself torn, unsure whether she's ready to give up on her songwriting dreams; but time is running out, and she must make one of the biggest decisions of her life.

Beautifully written and brilliantly original, Fledging is a riveting tale and resounding call for a woman's right to make her own choices, whether that means embracing motherhood or living child-free.
